

Enid Thomas

Four years ago, Enid Thomas was robbed on her way home from work. Enid fought the attacker and the robber escaped from the scene. The robber's skin was found under Enid's fingernails and a DNA profile was obtained. However, the profile did not match any existing profiles on the National DNA Database at that time.

Three years later, a man was robbed on his way home from work; however, the robber was caught by passers-by.

When the police arrested the robber, they took his DNA. The robber's DNA profile matched the DNA profile of the person who robbed Enid Thomas.

The robber was questioned further and confessed to robbing Enid.

Enid says, "I feel much safer knowing that the robber is in jail and that no-one else is at risk from him. This will help me to put this awful incident behind me".

